

Dr Antonios Alevizos is Co Manager of UN Sustainable Development Solutions Network of Greece and researcher of the Laboratories of Sociology of Culture and Civilization of the Panteion University of Social and Political Sciences and Socioeconomic and Environmental Sustainability of Athens University of Economics and Business as well as Political Economy of Sustainable Development of the National and Kapodistrian University of Athens. Also, is Adjunct Lecturer at the MSc “Law and Economics at Energy Markets” of the Department of International and European Economic Studies of Athens University of Economics and Business and he is member of the Scientific Council of the Hellenic Association of Political Sciences.

He graduated with distinction from the undergraduate (BA on Sociology) and postgraduate programme (MA at Social Exclusion and Minorities, PhD on Sociology) of the Department of Sociology of the Panteion University of Social and Political Sciences. During his studies was a scholar for excellent performance. At the same time he studied Business Administration at the University of Patras. Among his research interests included Social In (Equality), Sustainable Development with emphasis at the social dimensions, Sociology of Sustainable Development and the relationship of Sustainable Development with Corporate Social Responsibility.